State Rests After 6 Witnesses Heard In Veterans Trial

Defense Witnesses Try to Show Fall Could Kill
Person

DRESS WAS SHOWN

Chief Witness For State
Explicit in Details of Affair

ASHDOWN, July 18.—The state rested in the trial of George W. Davis, 35-year-old veteran of the Spanish-American war, charged with the slaying of his wife, near Foreman, June 16, at 3 p. m., Thursday in Little River county circuit court here.

The defense had used six witnesses when court adjourned at 6 p. m. Testimony of each defense witness revealed that an effort was being made to prove that the woman could have met her death by falling into the abandoned well from which she was rescued shortly before her death, and that Davis had shown no inclination to take her life a few hours before.

Found Bloody Handkerchief
Edgar Martin, of Foreman, testified that he found a blood stained woman's handkerchief at the bottom of the well when he inspected it on the afternoon of the woman's death.

Dude McElhannan testified to virtually the same thing as Martin, but on cross examination by Prosecuting Attorney John J. Dulaney, he admitted that the well contained a false bottom, and that the original bottom was at least six feet deeper than from where the woman lay.

Ben Jenkins, Foreman, Carpenter, testified to the false bottom, describing minutely the scene of the tragedy.

Question Gilbert's Testimony
An effort by the defense to impeach the testimony of W. J. Gilbert, the state's star witness, through the testimony of Mrs. C. E. May, court stenographer, appeared for the first time when the stenographer was placed on the stand and questioned concerning the contention that various discrepancies were evident in the man's testimony at the preliminary hearing and the testimony of the trial, Wednesday and Thursday.

The impeachment failed when Judge B. E. Isbell ruled that the slight discrepancies revealed were of immaterial value and were unavoidable under the circumstances.

Testimony of Mrs. Ellen Kernell and John Lee, both of Allene, were excluded from the record on the grounds that the money which they said Davis exhibited a year ago was too remote.

Dputy Sheriff Gene Harris, of Foreman, testified for the state before the close of its testimony Thursday afternoon that he found a blood stained woman's handkerchief between the wood curbing of the well and the earthen side. He said it appeared as if it had been pushed through a hole in the wood.

Sheriff J. G. Sanderson, who began testimony shortly before the noon recess, said that he found blood stains on a sill inside the house and a trail of blood leading from the well to the creek nearby.

The dead woman's dress was introduced as evidence, the dress bearing numerous blood stains in the back.

Says Found Dragged Path
Harris testified when recalled to the stand that he found a dragged path in the grass leading from the house to the creek, which looked as if "a body or sack of cotton had been dragged through the grass."

Each of the three wounds found on the head of the woman was made by the same instrument, Dr. H. Castle, of Foreman, who examined the woman after her death, testified.

Describing the wounds with Prosecuting Attorney Dulaney as the object, the physician declared that each wound was related to the other by an impression left on the skin which he believed was made by some projection on the death instrument.

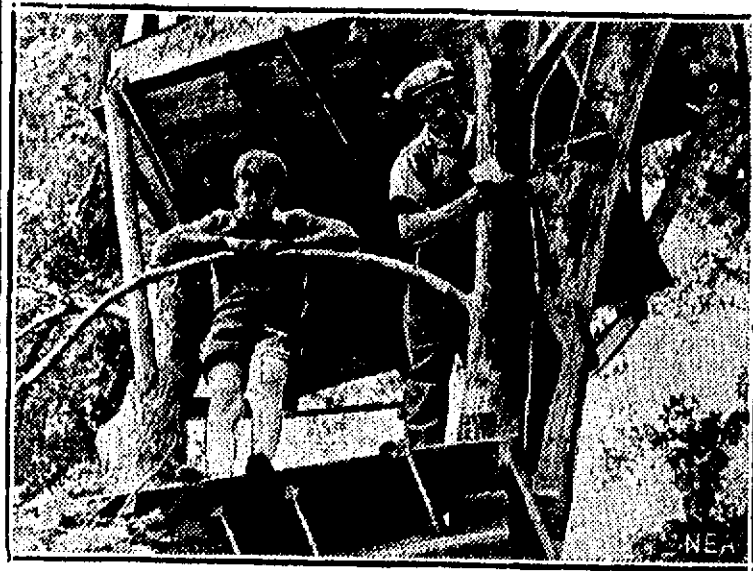

The wound found on the right side of the head near the temple was the fatal blow, the physician said he believed. Dr. Castle said he believed that the woman was struck on the head with a heavy blow.

Davis is accused of beating his bride six weeks over the head with a club and then threw her into an abandoned well about five miles northeast of Foreman, from where she was rescued, only to die en route to Foreman.

Gilbert, who began the state's testimony Wednesday with the story of how he and his wife came upon Davis at the well while the defendant was carrying planks to the well as if he was covering it, was recalled Thursday to testify again as to the complete composure and lack of excitement of the man when he met him.

State Trooper and Blackmailer Dead

Trooper Was Guarding
Package of Money
In Cemetery

MONESSEN, Pa., July 18.—(AP)—A state trooper and a suspected blackmailer shot each other to death in a cemetery near here early today.

Private Charles Stewart, 23, assigned with others to guard a package containing $10,000 in marked money, placed near a tombstone by F. W. Wright, wealthy furniture dealer after he had received a letter containing a death threat.

Shortly after the men had been stationed in the cemetery John Sabol, 25, appeared in the cemetery and walked straight to the tombstone by which the money was placed. As he stooped down to pick up the package, Stewart, who was in hiding near the tombstone, sprang out upon him. The two men grappled in the dark. Sabol drew a gun and fired the shot striking Stewart in the abdomen. At almost the same time Stewart fired killing Sabol instantly. Stewart died a short time after he was taken to the hospital.

Search For Body
In Burning Woods

KENNETT, Mo., July 18.—The body of a man seen Tuesday morning in the woods near Deering, Mo., has not yet been identified. The man apparently had been dead for several days.

Th body was discovered by Mrs. Tillman Scott and Mrs. P. Akers, who, with others from Kennett, were picking berries. So far as is known these are the only two who have seen the body and the chances of its identification are slight, especially since the woods at that place have been on fire since Wednesday night. Mrs. Scott leaned over a fallen tree and, looking down, saw the body of a man dressed in overalls and jumper. Mrs. Scott and Mrs. Akers left hastily.

They at once came to town where the discovery was reported to Sheriff Donaldson and Coroner T. J. Rigdon. Mrs. Akers said they saw two stills in the woods, but no one was at either, though they both seemed to be in operation.

Several have made a search but found nothing. One man was accosted by a man with a rifle when he went into the woods and told that he "had no business in there," and that ended his search.

Aged Man Blames Girl For Tragedy

Says She Attacked Him
With a Pair of Scissors

RUSSELLVILLE, Ark., July 18.—(AP)—The septuagenarian, whom he killed along with his wife late Wednesday, was blamed by J. C. Coleman, aged fisherman, for the tragedy. He said she first attacked him with scissors.

Coleman, who is held in jail without bond, stated that Mrs. Delores Bearden, 22, should be "where her husband was" in the state penitentiary, when he discovered her with her "severe lover." This prompted her attack on him, he said. When she came at him with the scissors, he picked up the hammer and hit her. Then he grabbed the butcher knife and stabbed her. Then Coleman said his wife entered from the kitchen, where she had been standing, and he struck her with the hammer, then stabbed her with the butcher knife.

HAMPTON, Ark., July 18.—(AP)—Doyle Speer, 13-year-old school boy is to be given a preliminary hearing here this afternoon, on a charge of shooting to death his brother-in-law, Clyde Turner, 24, a farmer living near Kinsmen, late last night. Turner is alleged to have attempted to strike his mother-in-law, who he blamed with domestic trouble between he and his wife.

Turner and his wife had been separated for several days, she being at the home of her mother. Turner came there last night and attempted a reconciliation between he and his wife. Failing in this, he is alleged to have become enraged and threatened Mrs. Speer, who he claimed had caused the trouble.

Doyle, son of Mrs. Speer, fearing that Turner was going to strike his mother, picked up a shot gun and fired at Turner, the entire load striking him in the stomach. He died almost instantly.

The boy was put under arrest by the officers who arrived shortly after the shooting, but was released under bond to await preliminary hearing.

Mascot Before Taking Off

TONAWANDA, N. Y., July 18.—(AP)—Frank Goldsborough, 19-year-old aviator who plunged to death in his plane on a mountainside in Vermont on Monday, had a premonition of impending disaster, Herbert Zettel said.

Goldsborough had been staying in Tonawanda for several weeks while alterations were being made in his plane by the Consolidated Aircraft Corporation. Monday he flew his plane over to Buffalo, preparatory to flying to Keen, N. H. A number of friends, including Zettel, went to the company airport to see him off.

The young aviator climbed into his plane, carrying "Contact," a tiny white dog, which he took with him on flights as a mascot. He dropped "Contact" inside the bosom of his flying suit and waved to his friends.

Then he climbed again from the cockpit and walked over to Zettel. Drawing the dog from inside his suit he handed it to Zettel with the remark: "Keep 'Contact' for me, will you? I've got a feeling something is going to happen."

Good News For Buyers

IN the city of New York there is an unusual sort of department store. Its proprietor, one S. Klein, operates on the unusual but sensible theory that shoppers do not need fancy salesrooms or high-pressure salesmen when they go in to buy things, and since he did a business of approximately $25,000,000 last year it would seem that his theory is a good one.

The current issue of Forbes' Magazine contains an article by Mr. Klein telling how his store works. It is worth looking at briefly here.

"My own conviction," he says, "is that the thing that sells is value. It may please a merchant's vanity or a customer's vanity to do business in an environment of beauty and luxury, I can see also that a certain kind of clientele may demand it, but when it comes down to brass tacks the average man and woman has the good sense to feel that $10 tucked onto a garment to pay for the rugs on the floors and the pictures on the walls might better be utilized to buy another frock or to outfit a child for school."

"We have a corps of 1200 employees augmented to 1500 to 1600 on Saturdays, but they enter the picture of selling only when a customer makes a special request for them. Our merchandise is displayed on racks which give the price and size in letters large enough for all to read. A woman enters and finds her way or is directed to the section she wants. Nobody badgers her, nobody follows her."

"She examines, she compares values, she chooses, she buys without the strain or embarrassment of being watched, of being supervised, of being judged if she doesn't buy. If she finds something she wants, good. If not there are no feelings hurt. The vast majority of purchases go through this way."

All of this is rather interesting. We have made such a cult of salesmanship in this country in the last few years that we have tended to lose sight of the fact that good merchandise will generally sell itself. Many salesmen pride themselves on being able to make a customer buy something which the customer does not really want; which may be fine for the salesman, but which is bad for the customer and, in the long run, for the proprietor as well.

Mr. Klein's idea is refreshing. If it marks a tendency to get away from the high-pressure salesmanship which has been in vogue recently, we can all be thankful.

Lesson For America

NOW that John McDonald has been found, it is probable that the last chapter in the sensational Mooney case will soon be written.

Tom Mooney and Warren Billings, as you of course know, were sent to prison for life in 1917 after they were convicted of planting the bomb which exploded during San Francisco's preparedness day parade, killing six people and injuring many more.

They were convicted chiefly on the testimony of two men. One was McDonald, who swore he saw them deposit the suitcase containing the bomb at a downtown street corner. The other was a man named Oxman, who also testified he had seen them in that neighborhood on that day.

Since then Oxman has been proved to be a perjurer. He was not in San Francisco at all on the day of the bombing. And now McDonald confesses that he never saw Mooney and Billings in his life until long after the bombing. He intimates—and it is a thing that ought to be looked into pretty thoroughly—that the prosecuting officials of San Francisco willfully connived at his perjury in order to put Mooney and Billings in prison.

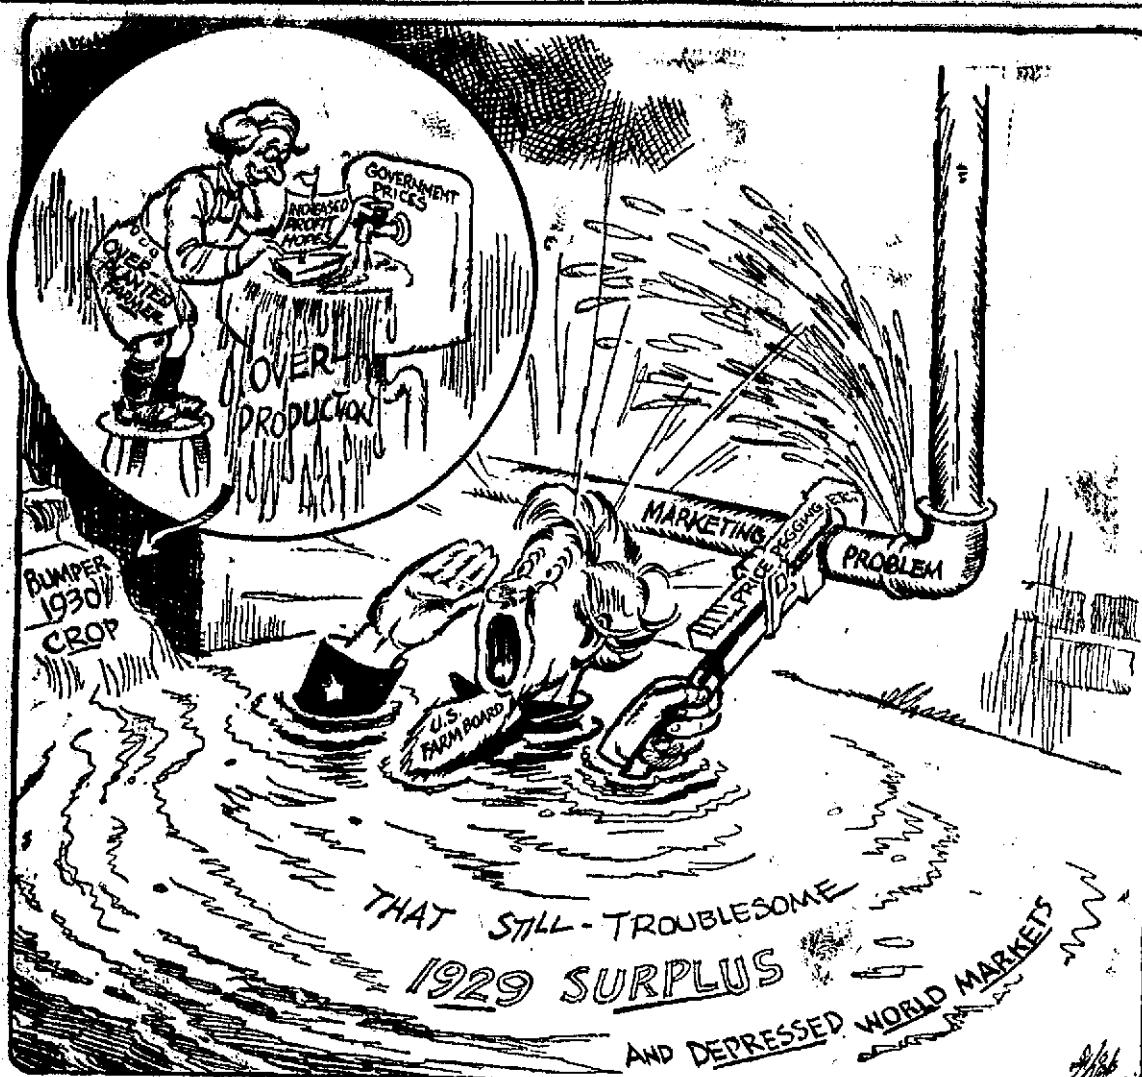

Mooney and Billings were extremely unpopular in San Francisco in those days. They were labor agitators, they did not use kid glove methods, and they had many enemies. Since they were imprisoned their friends have maintained that they were "railroaded" because of these animities and not because anyone in authority really believed that they were guilty of the bombing. Now it seems as if that charge might have been justified.

The whole tragic story illustrates the dangers that arise when a whole community becomes infected with an intense emotion. Money and Billings paid for running counter to this hectic emotion of wartime by spending upward of a dozen years in prison. It is impossible to give them back those lost 12 years; but the least we can do is to take a warning from their case and remind ourselves that it is precisely the unpopular, much-hated prisoner who needs to be given the most scrupulously fair, unprejudiced treatment when he comes into court. In no other way can we avoid repeating this tragic mistake some time in the future.

This is "Red" Forsythe whom Los Angeles and Chicago police say they are practically certain is the man who actually killed Alfred J. Lingle, Chicago reporter. He is reported to have fled Los Angeles recently just before a raid that netted Frankie Foster, purchaser of the fatal gun, and five other Chicago gangsters.

Daily WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
 NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON. — Congressman Hamilton Fish of New York, chairman of the House committee investigating Communist activities in the United States, is satisfied that the Reds do not present enough of a menace to cause anyone to fear the overthrow of our government.

But Mr. Fish believes that this system which operates in Washington is the finest government ever devised by man and he consequently has no patience with those radicals who want to upset it. Even if they are not dangerous, he says, there is no reason why they should be permitted to organize and propagandize in the United States.

There Was a Red Flag

Mr. Fish was kind enough to telephone your correspondent and point out that the committee had discovered that the red flag had actually been flown over the University of Chicago, as Father Edmund Walsh had testified. There had been considerable confusion over that piece of testimony among the committee members, who proposed to keep it out of the record, and also in the mind of your correspondent, who reported that the committee had found there wasn't any red flag at all.

But the University of Chicago now admits it. The assistant to the university's president has written to Father Walsh, noting "unfortunate misinterpretation" of the flag testimony. It appears that a university cop found a big red flag on the campus flag staff about 5 o'clock one morning and hauled it down, but was unable to place responsibility. Other reports indicate that some of the Socialist students were having a little fun. Mr. Fish admits that the flag incident wasn't an especially hot piece of evidence about Communist penetration of the higher institutions of learning. He hasn't anything against Socialists, anyway.

"As I see it, the Socialists are trying to extend democracy," he says, "but the Communists want to set up a dictatorship by a minority. In Russia there are two or three million members of the Communist party ruling over 150,000,000 people. I don't want anyone to think that I'm trying to stir up a red scare, but we ought to know what these people are doing over here."

"The committee has proved that the Communists here take their orders from Moscow to preach class hatred and revolution. They never made any bones about it, so that wasn't any secret, but many members of Congress didn't know it. I doubt whether there was a single member who realized that our government departments had no funds and no authority to deal with the situation. Now that we have focused attention on what is going on I am sure that Congress will want to pass appropriate legislation. A few nights ago 12,000 Communists met in Madison Square Garden in New York and paid 50 cents apiece to get in. We can't let that kind of thing go on. Other countries have secret service men who join these Communist groups and attend their meetings so they can keep track of things."

Mr. Fish says he personally wouldn't curtail free speech except when people advocate overthrowing the government by force and violence.

"The Cuckoos," Comedy Treat of The Year

Proving that there is, after all, something new in motion pictures, "The Cuckoos," Radio Pictures riotous extravaganza of nonsense, opens today at the Saenger theatre. Filled with mad waggery and delicious fun, "The Cuckoos" is a new type of screen musical which seems to come about the closest to one hundred per cent popular appeal that any picture ever has achieved. "The Cuckoos" is not a revue; and it is not a musical comedy. The film is based on a well developed plot and has a pleasing little romantic story running throughout.

But the comedy is of prime importance. Those two mad wags, Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey of "Rio Rita" fame clown their way through the show carrying everything with them. The picture is completely theirs—a delicious concoction of delightful nonsense, wild fun and side-splitting comedy gags. Never before has any screen production presented comedy throughout and succeeded in making every moment one of un-

Body of Air Pilot Found Near Stream

CEDAR CITY, Utah, July 17.—(AP)—A long search for Maurice Graham, western air express aviator was ended when his body was found about six miles from his wrecked plane late yesterday.

Major R. MacDonald, who had flown with Graham many times, was in charge of the search. The body was found in a clump of underbrush in the Kanara mountains near a stream 22 miles southeast of here.

Identification was made possible by two cards, a revolver and tinny food Graham was known to have carried in the wrecked plane. The searching party believe that Graham had died from exposure. The position of the body indicated that he was sitting down to eat when death came, it was said.

Discovery of the body climaxed a long search, beginning after the discovery of the wrecked plane. A clue, mainly responsible for the finding of the man's body was a burned out camp fire, and scattered bits from a kit believed to have belonged to Graham.

Graham who was a pilot on an air mail line between Los Angeles, Calif. and Salt Lake City, Utah. He was on the last lap of an eastward journey when he encountered a storm over Nevada and Utah when his ship crashed.

Henley's agents then confiscated a 100-gallon still, 1,500 gallons of mash and a quantity of alcohol.

Toasting Funeral Gets Pair Jailed After Chase

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, July 18.—(UP)—Toasting a funeral escort may be considered proper in some places, but when a trio of men picked out, a pair of deputy sheriffs, and offered to let them join in the toast, the result was just what Andrew Volstead may have expected it to be.

The deputies, Richard Giles and Roy Beatty, were escorting a funeral procession when three men drove up in a car, saluted the procession, and offered the two officers a drink. Giles and Beatty said "Sure," then captured the trio after a chase of nearly a mile.

HOOKS AND SLIDES

by William Braucher

The Other Side

But for one thing I could feel very sorry for poor old Sylvester U. Sapp, the boxing fan, when he is framed and looted by the burglars of boxing. That thing is what often seems his heartless and cruelty to a man in the ring who is carrying on bravely in order to "put up a fight" in the face of the impossible.

With the boos and jeers of a few thousand assorted patrons of boxing ringing in his battered ears, Sergeant Sammy Baker fought the most hopeless battle of his career the other night in Cleveland, only to collapse with brain hemorrhages in the 12th round.

The Sarge has been fighting a long time. He fought in the army, overseas and has been fighting since. For the last six years he has been giving good service in the ring. He had no black marks against him as a foul crer or staller.

Didn't Feel Right

THE other night, in his bout with Baby Joe Gans, he didn't seem like the same Sammy Baker. He had been ill for several days before the fight, but the show, an outdoor affair, had been ordered to go on without postponement by the boxing commission. So Sammy went on, though he wasn't feeling the best in the world.

He fought as well as he could. But he missed repeatedly. He would lay back, gauge his distance carefully, then come upon Baby Joe with a rush. Twice he floored Gans, and must have thought, "I'm getting along pretty well at that, considering."

But Gans kept piling into him. The Sarge took seven blows to give one. He couldn't see those fists coming at him out of the shadows. The colored boy was getting the best of him. He tried to protect himself. He would cover up under the rushes—and from the semi-darkness around the patch of light under which the two men fought came the jeers and boos of Sylvester U. Sapp. Action! That's what Sylvester U. Sapp wanted—and not this dancing around.

The Last Rally

THE Sarge, about the 10th round, decided to stake all that he had in an attack. He rushed Gans, pawing at him, swinging, punching furiously, but his fists only grazed the colored boy.

Baby Joe knew that something was wrong.

Between the 10th and 11th

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

THEY have been laughing at McGraw because he traded Lefty O'Doul for Frank Leach . . . but not lately . . . because Leach has been a Hon., especially on the western trip. In the first nine games of the swing through the open spaces, Leach smacked out a nifty 438. . . . Well, here July 4th has come and gone and those Robins are flying around right up there . . . and they're fighting mad, too. . . . The Brooklynites played to 145,000 people in four days in Chicago. . . . The rivalry between boxing commissions and associations makes it easy for wrong fighters to flourish. . . . The N. B. A., covering 26 states, usually does the opposite whenever the New York, California or some other boxing commission issues an edict. . . . rounds, he turned to his handlers. "Ah, wisht Ah was outta heah," he told them. "Ah doan' like de way dat boy look."

They were booing in the 12th round when Sammy went down, without being hit. It looked like a dive. The Sarge seemed to be quitting. Headfirst to the canvas went the Sarge, without being hit. The razzberry chorus sounded loud and long.

"Too Many Blows" BABY JOE lifted him and blood poured from his mouth and nose. An ambulance was summoned hurriedly. But the Sarge got to his feet.

"I'm okay," he muttered. "I don't want any ride in that thing."

But they piled him in, so weak that his knees buckled under him like reeds. At the hospital it was said he had a chance, but he had taken too many blows about the head and it would take a long time. It looks like the Sarge is washed up. But that's the way of it.

A long fight, and at the end of the trail the boos ringing in your ears. That is the other side of this racket known as boxing.

MOBILE, Ala., July 18.—(UP)—Friendliness put a man into trouble here. John Miller, Wheelersville, visiting a friend in county jail, was required to post $150 bond to get out when Deputy Sheriff Will Armistead remembered he had a warrant charging Miller with assault and battery.

Allison Gets Aid To 'Self-Confidence'

The sensational victory of Wilmer Allison, member of the American Davis Cup team, over Henri Cochet of France, the world's champion tennis player, is looked upon by critics as a boon to his self-confidence he needed to rise high in the tennis world.

NEW YORK.—(AP)—Wilmer Allison "is endowed with all the requirements of a champion except self-confidence," said no less an authority on the game and its players than the veteran Samuel Hardy.

The statement was made shortly before the young Texan amazed two hemispheres by beating the great Henri Cochet at Wimbledon.

If that victory has not given Allison the necessary faith in his own ability he is indeed a most extraordinary young man.

The chances are that his spectacular triumph over the little French marvel whom all the world regarded as virtually unbeatable will prove the turning point in Allison's career.

Incidentally Wilmer has the steadfast support of his bride of a few months who accompanied him to England with the Davis cup team and appears to have helped provide the spark of inspiration that can transform a mere tournament player into a world's champion.

One victory does not make a champion and most tennis followers believe that Cochet, a notorious in-and-outter, could "take" Allison two out of three times, but probably none of the young American stars has better stroke equipment with which to undertake the climb to world title heights than Allison.

Hardy, a fine player in his day and one of the best of critics, writes in the new Spalding Tennis annual that if Allison "would develop Frank Hunter's unconquerable spirit, he might very well go to the top."

"His stroke equipment is second to none, and he is a seasoned match player with an unsuspected reserve of stamina which usually brings him through his five-set matches."

"His grips are Eastern, his ground strokes sound, and his volleys are made with a punch that puts them cleanly away. He is a fair server, a tremendous smasher, a fine doubles as well as singles player, and when confident is able to give anyone a battle.

Born in San Antonio, Texas, Dec. 8, 1904, Allison is almost exactly the same age as Bill Tilden was when he blossomed forth as one of the greatest of them all.

Allison is slim and lithe of build, weighing 155 and measuring 5 feet, 10 inches. Speed is his forte and no player, unless it be Jean Borotra of France at his best, can match him in overhead smashing at the net.

The Texan carries just the weapons that are calculated to do the most damage against Cochet and there is some chance that the captain of the Davis Cup team may make a bold move and use him in singles as well as in doubles.

At any rate, this looks like an Allison year and the southwest whirlwind who first gained national renown three seasons ago as Intercollegiate champion of the United States from the University of Texas seems destined for a considerable higher place in his country's ranking list than his present position at No. 7.

O. H. Henry, prosperous farmer living on Hope Route 3, was a business visitor in Hope today and a pleasant caller at the office of the Hope Star.

Alleged Killer of 20 Believed Found

Alleged To Have Been Arrested in Mississippi After 22 Years

LA PORTE, Ind., July 18.—(AP)—Mrs. Belle Guinness, who a score of years ago was accused of slaying between 15 and 20 men on a "matrimonial farm" near here, was arrested at Jackson, Miss., it was said in a telegram received at the sheriff's office.

The case at the time attracted nationwide attention and was climaxed by the burning of the home in which Mrs. Guinness lived, in the ruins of which were found the bodies of her three children and the body of a woman, believed at the time to have been Mrs. Guinness, although authorities never were satisfied that the body was hers.

The woman's custom had been to lure men to the farm on a proposal of marriage and then to slay them. The bodies were found buried about the farm.

The telegram saying that Mrs. Guinness, alias Mrs. J. I. Smith, was under arrest, came from Sheriff Tom Moore at Jackson, who asked if she was wanted. La Porte authorities immediately answered that she was wanted badly.

A son of Sheriff Thomas B. McDonald of Porter county said the sheriff was out of town on another case. He recalled, however, that the Guinness murders had been discovered some 20 years ago. The Guinness farmhouse, where Mrs. Guinness, a widow, lived, a mile out of town, burned down one night, he said. Next day searchers found a charred body, which was identified through a set of false teeth as that of Mrs. Guinness.

The fire led to a search of the farm and a number of pieces of human bodies wrapped in gunny sacks were dug up, he said. It never was established just how many bodies there were. McDonald said many persons at that time believed that the body found in the farm house ruins was that of another victim and that Mrs. Guinness had escaped.

During 1908, and prior thereto, Mrs.

Guinness inserted advertisements in newspapers asking for husbands. These men, the investigators said, answered the ads, married Mrs. Guinness, lived with her a while, and then she would get control of their money and poison them.

Will Lamphere, farm hand who worked for Mrs. Guinness, was convicted of arson in connection with the fire and sentenced to Indiana state prison, but he never admitted that his employer might still be alive.
